/ BIO

Avery Andon is a Miami-based art dealer, entrepreneur and philanthropist, best known for developing Alec Monopoly into a global name, with sold-out exhibitions from New York to Morocco and brand partnerships that established him among the world's most profitable street artists.

An innovator of online art sales, he launched ArtLife.com in 2015 as one of the first online-only blue-chip galleries, and coined "Click & Mortar" for its model of social-first marketing plus curated pop-ups. An early champion of Hebru Brantley and Jammie Holmes, he advises celebrities, collectors and companies on art.

As host of ArtLife with Avery Andon he has interviewed Incubus frontman Brandon Boyd, Brian Clarke (executor of the Zaha Hadid and Francis Bacon estates), David Packouz (the inspiration for War Dogs) and actor Said Taghmaoui. He has served as Co-Chair for UCLA Mattel Children's Hospital and Goldie Hawn's MindUP, co-founded City Seats with the New York Yankees, and supports WildAid, the Amazon Conservation Team, the Miami Police Department's Do the Right Thing program and Amigos for Kids.
