

GemBreak — Top Viral Video Styles (competitor teardown)

Ranked from 154 scraped competitor TikTokTs (PackDraw · CSGORoll · Courtyard · IcyBox · Jemlit). Bar = median views. The product-showcase is NOT the winner — relatability is.

1 Culture / gaming meme + brand

5–10s

4.7% eng

600,000 median views

Meme about the audience's world (degen/gameplay/collector jokes), brand just attached. Not a product video — pure relatability = max reach.

real examples: "P awper dies" · "wtf is this new update bro"

2 Relatable / POV skit

7–15s

5.99% eng

112,300 median views

"the type of people in chat", "9am vs 9pm", "pov your first pull". Character/scenario the viewer sees themselves in.

real examples: "P 9am vs 9pm" · "the teammates I get"

3 Suspense pull reaction

20–40s

0.61% eng

49,800 median views

Build tension on a slow reveal, real gasp on the hit. The "is that a...?!" clip moment. Reliable volume format.

real examples: "is that a... gold?" · "Nooo don't do this"

4 Proof / trust flex

20–45s

5.69% eng

100,000 median views

Kills the #1 objection (is it legit / does it pay). Withdraw test, real ship-out, "this is what pulls actually look like".

real examples: "Proof ... built different" · withdraw test

5 Big-win / value reveal

10–25s

0.61% eng

18,350 median views

"$40 pack → $2,400". The number IS the hook. Short, punchy, screenshot-able.

real examples: "best feeling ever >>>>"

6 Luxury / ASMR reveal

20–40s

1.62% eng

15,000 median views

Satisfying close-up unbox, minimal talking, item does the work. For the watch/chain/luxury niche.

real examples: "$72k watches" · iced-out reveal

The pattern: the two highest-reach styles (culture meme + POV skit) barely show the product — they're short, native, and about the viewer's world. The pull is the punchline, not the pitch. Length wins short (5–15s for reach), and 49/50 top videos read as organic, not ads.